NONCONFORMIST — hell YEAH · Suno v6 Version B modern club: keep the percussive identity, go DJ-friendly

1 Styles: kept vs new → 2 arrangement: A vs B → 3 differences + when to switch

1 STYLES · kept from A vs new in B

KEPT FROM A · the percussive identity

126 BPM · 4/4 · fully instrumental · no commercial EDM drops minimal tribal groove; conga-inspired toms, metallic clicks syncopated rubbery synth, resonant filtered plucks deep kick, rolling sub-bass, interlocking loops + fills

NEW IN B · modern club production modern, long-form DJ-friendly progression subtle tension and release, evolving polyrhythmic tension dry upfront percussion vs delicate spatial effects dark futuristic warehouse atmosphere

2 ARRANGEMENT · A vs B

same axis; block widths equal, section lengths unspecified

3 DIFFERENCES · when to switch aspect	A faithful	B modern club goal	reconstruct the original groove	modernise, keep percussive identity kick / bass	arrive late (Low-End Arrival)	minimal kick from the Groove Intro tension	percussion dropouts	real breakdown: bass + kick recede edges	short intro, fading outro	DJ intro, extended outro for mixing space	restrained effects	dry drums vs delicate spatial fx late arrival matters? keep A's structure, borrow B's Styles
