NONCONFORMIST — hell YEAH, release facts and musical identity

Problem

Say in one breath what the track is and which traits must survive any remake.

Instant solution

Release (checked on Audius):

Field	Value
Title	NONCONFORMIST - hell YEAH (original mix)
Artist	Gabe Sage
Genre / mood	Techno / Cool
Released	2021-03-30
Duration	7:38
Link	https://audius.co/esha_szabo/nonconformist-hell-yeah-original-mix-323253
Analysed	37.9 s snippet, instrumental

Release description: "drifting its audience through a deep phantasmagorical journey … from subtle oscillations to lifting resonances" — a progressively expanding sonic journey.

Core idea: a rhythmic, hypnotic, percussion-led underground techno groove with a repeating, rounded synth motif, interlocking percussion and a progressively stronger low-end foundation.

Six traits to preserve:

Trait	Keep it like this
Groove	driving, repetitive, syncopated — not heavily melodic
Percussion	busy, tightly interlocking organic + electronic patterns
Bass	rounded electronic movement; deeper kick-and-bass foundation emerges later
Synths	short, rubbery, slightly resonant repeating phrases
Arrangement	layer accumulation and rhythmic evolution, no verse/chorus
Mood	underground, playful, hypnotic, physical, a little unconventional

Genre direction: hypnotic minimal techno with tribal-percussive and microhouse/tech-house influences.

Why it works / gotchas

- The genre label is a production-oriented interpretation, not the official subgenre of the release.

- This track is not the atmospheric dub-techno concept — do not reuse dub-techno prompts for it.
- Identity lives in one interaction: short repeating synth figure × syncopated tribal percussion × progressively heavier bass. That combination matters more than any genre tag.

Diagram brief

- Type: mind map.
- Center: "hell YEAH (2021, 7:38)".
- Six branches: Groove · Percussion · Bass · Synths · Arrangement · Mood, each with its 3–5 word rule.
- Highlight the three-way core (Synths + Percussion + Bass) with one shared colour and an "identity" label.
- Side note: "minimal techno + tribal + microhouse — interpretation".